Imagine a home filled with rich colors and comforting textures - the warm honey tones of well-polished wood . . . the soothing brushstrokes of chocolate. Now, imagine that you can have all it without doing any damage to the world in which we live.

This spring take the natural approach to interior and exterior design with the stunning Urban Timber and the Horn Tile series found at Tile Collection.

Whether you're updating a kitchen or bathroom, adding an element of interest to living spaces or find yourself redefining your outdoor oasis, these sumptuous selections add easy elegance without acute care.

Rich and sensual, the veining of the Horn Tile series adds interest to any application. These generous tiles carry a slightly satin finish for a luxurious, enveloping atmosphere.

Urban Timber has the look and feel of real wood -- thanks, in part, to their unique dimensions. With distinctive color gradation and precise texture, these stylish tiles add warmth without work.

Available in four finish stains and two sizes (6" x 24" and 6" x 35"), these exciting new tiles are certified for outdoor use, making them ideal for breathing new life into patios and pool surrounds. Jennifer Creasser explains, "In order to withstand our area's extreme temperature differences our installers take the extra steps needed to install weatherproof membranes for outdoor applications."

Of course, those living with children or older adults have to keep safety in mind. But, the embossing and finish create an extraordinarily slip-resistant surface.

Unlike wood, these tiles cannot be scratched or stained. Plus, they're fade-resistant -- making them ideal for use in the sunniest areas.

However, proper installation is a must. Due to their unique shape, a level surface area is essential for aesthetic appeal and proven durability. This is why the professionals at Tile Collection offer professional installation.

Their expert installers enjoy decades of professional tile experience and are versed in creating the proper foundation for outstanding wear. The company even has general contractors, interior designers and a certified plumber on staff to assist with bathroom, kitchen and outdoor remodels.

"People are trying to make their home investments go farther," Creasser says. "So, we're providing them with additional services that save time and money. We strive to ultimately raise the value of their homes dollar for dollar." ♦
